HOW TO CHOOSE THE PERFECT WEDDING BAND

Tips for finding a ring that lasts a lifetime.

1. Start Early
Give yourself time. Ideally, begin shopping at least 2-3 months before the wedding. This allows for browsing, customizations, resizing, and any last-minute changes.

2. Consider Your Lifestyle
Do you work with your hands? Play sports? Prefer something low-maintenance? Simple gold or platinum bands are durable and classic, while more intricate designs might require extra care.

3. Match -- or Don't
Your wedding band doesn't have to match your partner's exactly. Many couples choose complementary styles that reflect their individual personalities but still coordinate in metal or engraving.

4. Think Long-Term
Trends come and go, but your wedding band is forever. Choose something that feels timeless to you, whether that's a plain band, a diamond-accented ring, or something custom.

5. Set a Budget
Wedding bands come in a wide range of prices depending on metal type, stone accents, and craftsmanship. Set a comfortable budget that fits within your overall wedding plans.

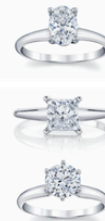

6. Try It On
What looks beautiful in a case may feel totally different on your hand. Try on a few styles—different widths, finishes, and shapes—to see what feels best.

7. Add Meaning
Many couples opt for engraving—your wedding date, initials, a short phrase, or even a fingerprint. It's a subtle way to make the ring even more special.

Whether you're looking for a band that pairs with an engagement ring or stands powerfully on its own, the perfect wedding band is out there—and when you find it, you'll know.

10 SPECIAL ROLES FOR LOVED ONES WHO AREN'T IN YOUR WEDDING PARTY

Just because they're not standing beside you at the altar doesn't mean they can't be part of your big day.

When planning your wedding, choosing who makes it into your official wedding party can be one of the toughest decisions. You may have family members, lifelong friends, or mentors who've played a major role in your life but don't quite fit into traditional roles. The good news? There are plenty of ways to include these important people in your celebration.

Here are 10 meaningful roles to consider:

Ceremony Reader
Invite someone you love to read a meaningful passage, poem, or letter during the ceremony. It's perfect for someone who's articulate and enjoys speaking in front of a crowd.

Officiant
Many couples ask a friend or family member who knows them well to officiate the ceremony. It adds warmth and personality—and many states allow them to become ordained online.

Musician or Singer
If someone in your circle is musically inclined, invite them to perform during the ceremony or reception. Live music adds a personal touch that creates unforgettable memories.

Candle Lighter
If your ceremony includes candles or a unity lighting, ask a loved one to light them. It's a small but symbolic gesture.

Usher
Ushers welcome guests, hand out programs, and guide people to their seats. It's an ideal job for outgoing friends who want to help.

Processional Escort
Invite someone special to walk grandparents or other relatives down the aisle. It honors both the escort and the loved one they accompany.

Marriage License Witness
This legal role has lasting meaning. Ask a close friend or family member to witness your marriage license signing—an intimate part of the day.

Social Media Manager
Have a tech-savvy friend document candid moments throughout the day. They can capture behind-the-scenes memories while you stay present in the moment.

Give someone the task of snapping instant photos or encouraging guests to sign your guestbook. It's a fun, interactive way to preserve memories.

Choosing the Right Person
These roles are perfect for people who may not be bridesmaids or groomsmen, but still mean the world to you. It's all about finding ways to make everyone feel valued—and a part of your special day.
